

5 Themes of Geography Project

DUE September 12th (Periods: A; E; and F)

September 13th (Periods: C and D)

- Select a place (it can be anywhere in the world) you have visited or would like to visit.
- Make a poster (18" x 24") or booklet (one page per theme) about the place you have selected demonstrating the Five Themes of Geography. Each theme should have pictures; you may cut these out of magazines, print them from the computer, draw them yourself or use actual photographs, and....
- Along with pictures, you will write one paragraph (3 to 5 sentences) with details about each theme in regards to the place you have chosen.
- Use your 5 Themes handouts that you received in class to help you understand each theme and correctly demonstrate it..... be thorough!

Location: You must include both the absolute (longitude and latitude) and relative (bordering cities, countries, landmarks, etc., whatever is appropriate for your choice) location of your place.

Place: Include physical features, landforms, capitals and major cities, climate, plant and animal life, altitude, soil, etc. Include human features such as population, housing, language, economy, customs and beliefs.

Human/Environment Interaction: Show how the people and the environment interact in this place. Positive Interaction looks like recycling, conserving resources, replanting trees, planned development with safeguards for the environment and such. Negative Interaction looks like pollution, wasting resources, cutting down trees, development with no regards to the environment and so on.

Movement: Show major forms of transportation, major imports and exports, are there any ports (air or sea) or harbors? What does communication (movement of ideas) look like in this place?

Regions: Show which region it is in, this may be a region in the state it is in, or in the country it is in. Also, include which continent it is located in. For example, Winston-Salem is in the Piedmont region of N.C. and the Southeastern region of the United States. It is also located in the North American continent.
